A cup lighter in color and flavor than Darjeeling black tea, with the characteristic hint of muscat.

The first-flush harvest is a connoisseur's delight, with delicate aroma and flowery taste.

The summer harvest picked before the monsoon produces a darker, more full-bodied cup.

Robust but smooth, Nilgiri can be enjoyed any time of day, black or with milk and sugar.

Blend of Indian green tea and sweet spices, with a lingering scent of almond. Brew it up strong with milk and sugar.

A distinctive full-bodied tea, dark and malty—in a class by itself. Perfect as a morning pick-me-up, or as an afternoon rejuvenator, black or with milk and sugar.
